

The Galileo-Shakespeare Project

A Conference on the Humanities and Sciences in the Early Modern World

November 13-14, 2014 in Chicago, IL

Presented by the Benjamin Franklin Project at IIT and the Montesquieu Forum at Roosevelt University

SCHEDULE:

Thursday, November 13

Ganz Hall, Roosevelt University, 430 South Michigan Avenue, Seventh Floor

5 p.m. The New Yorker's Adam Gopnik: The Humanities as the Foundation of the Sciences
Reception to follow

Friday, November 14

McCormick Tribune Campus Center Auditorium, Illinois Institute of Technology, 3201 South State Street

9 a.m. Victoria Kahn, University of California, Berkeley, Thomas Hobbes: Revolution in the Making

10:30 a.m. David Wootton, University of York, Galileo and the Scientific Revolution

12 p.m. Lunch

1 p.m. Mary Nichols, Baylor University, Antony and Cleopatra's "New Heaven, New Earth"

2:30 p.m. A Discussion of Galileo, Shakespeare, and the Atlantic Enlightenment with Benjamin Lynerd, Roosevelt University

3:30 p.m. Reception

For more information contact Dr. Carolyn Purnell at cpurnell1@iit.edu

